Electropoise.

TRADE MARK

SIMPLE IN CONSTRUCTION,
PERMANENT IN DURATION,
EASILY APPLIED, ITS SKILL-FUL USE QUICKLY LEARNED

The Electropoise is an Instrument for the
CURE OF DISEASE
WITHOUT MEDICINE.

BASED ON NEW theories of the cause and cure of disease, it deals with the electrical and magnetic conditions of the body and the gases surrounding it in the atmosphere, controlling these conditions at will. It is not electricity, DISEASE is simply impaired vitality. The electropoise constantly adds to the vitality and only acts in nature, in nature's way, to throw off the trouble.

A 40-page book, describing treatment and containing testimonials from all a cure, and for the cure of all diseases, mailed free on application.

End of a Sensational Trial.

The sensational trial of Eugene Prager, the divorced wife of Prof. Prager, and of her brother, Max Schwelizer, for conspiracy to kill the Professor, came to an end in Berlin Monday. The attempt to kill, which was almost successful, occurred on the night of September 17 last, and was the result of a series of domestic troubles in which the learned Professor became involved through an unfortunate marriage.

Prof. Prager is a lecturer in Berlin University, and highly esteemed. His wife was a woman of dissolute habits, and the marriage had been forced upon the Professor by designing relatives. Although not a willing husband, he tried to bear patiently with his wife, in the hope that she would reform, and was deaf to the many stories which were being told by those who observed her follies. Eugene, instead of being moved by her husband's kindness, instead took his leniency for indifference, and plunged more and more into vice. Her name became almost common among the young (Misses) of the Berlin garrison, and one Lieutenant in particular was said to show her devoted attention.

Prof. Prager went on a voyage to India, and was absent for some time in connection with his university duties. Upon his return he ascertained that his wife's conduct had become so flagrant that his choice remained between a divorce and disgrace for himself.
He had no difficulty in obtaining his divorce.
His former wife became greatly embittered against him on account of the publicity attending the proceedings and determined to murder him. She engaged her brother, Max Schwelizer, to perform the deed.

Prof. Prager was in bed at the time of the assault. The brother suddenly entered the Professor's sleeping apartment, drew a revolver from his pocket, and fired, inflicting a wound in the right chest. The Professor sprang out of bed and rushed at the assassin.
Without waiting to fire another shot, the latter turned and fled, escaping from the house.

The police were at once notified, but Schwelizer had got away from the city. In the room, however, was found a false beard, a wig and a man's hat, which the would-be murderer had left behind. These articles were not necessary for identity, as the Professor had recognized in his assailant the brother of his faithless wife.

The search for the fugitive was vigorously conducted, and he was at length arrested.
Once in custody, Schwelizer weakened and confessed. He laid the chief blame on his sister, Frau Prager. He said that she had offered him 1,000 marks to kill her husband, and assisted him to procure the disguise and the revolver. Max was to enter the Professor's room while he was asleep and shoot him dead.

Then the revolver was to be placed in such a way as to give an impression of suicide, which, in view of the Professor's domestic troubles, would readily be believed.
The plan miscarried through the nervousness and clumsiness of Max, who, upon entering the room, made such a noise as to awaken his intended victim.

When he saw the Professor was awake and recognized him he was unable to take steady aim, and the bullet, which was meant for the brain, only wounded his face.
In view of his confession, Schwelizer was sentenced only to five years' imprisonment, while Eugene, for instigating the crime, received a penalty of six years.

The woman, whose beauty, somewhat marred by her dissolute habits, had come back to her during the restraint of imprisonment, received the sentence with a cry of anguish, and cast a fierce look upon her brother, who cowered under her glance.

HORROR HEARD ON HORROR.—A most peculiar and frightful quadruple accident occurred near Spring Valley, Minn., Sunday. Frank Osterander, a farmer, had the misfortune to cut his leg while chopping.
He was helped by friends to his home and bed. That evening his wife, in a delicate condition, went out to milk the cow and was kicked nearly to death by the vicious brute. She managed to crawl to the house where, without a helping hand, she gave birth to twins. Shortly afterwards and pain was too great for the mother and she died an hour later. The father, in a frenzy of grief, endeavored to rise from his bed and started his injured leg to bleeding. Before he could reach the side of his dead wife and babies he died.
